interested in private bills. The House then went into cimmittee of the whole for consideration of bills on the private calendar. Mr. Pickler, chairman of the committee on invalid pensions, moved that bills from the committee on war claims be laid aside without prejudice, and that the committee consider only bills from the committee on pensions, invalid pensions and military affairs. Some of the Democrats attempted to fill-buster by offering dilatory amendments, but all were voted down, and Mr. Pickler's motion was agreed to.

Much of the afternoon was consumed in the discussion of a single bill, the Democrats intimating that an unfair advantage had been taken of them by the adoption of Mr. Pickler's motion. When the appropriation bill had been displaced they supposed that bills for claims and all other bills on the private calendar would be considered in their order, not that pension cases alone would be singled out for consideration.

After acting on several bills, the committee arose.

Mr. Hepburn moved that when the House djourn to-day it be to meet on Monday. Mr. annon antagonized the motion, but he was refeated—168 to 25. THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

Warrer Miller's Testimony Refore the Louse Committee.

WASHING ON, March 27 .- The investigation of the Nicaragua canal problem by the House committee on commerce was begun to-day by the appearance of Hon. Warner fler, of New York, the president of the canal company. There was a full attendance of the members of the committee and other interested persons. Mr. Miller declared that he had not come for the purpose of recom-mending the Mahon bill, which had been adopted by the subcommittee, nor had he even read the bill. He described at some length the history of the work on the canal, treating of the physical conditions in Nicaragua and many other details. Mr. Miller's idea was that the government should guarantee bonds to the amount of $100,000,000 at 3 per cent., which would necessitate an annual expenditure of $3,000,000 for interest. About $1,000,000 a year would be needed for main tenance and improvements, about the cost of maintaining the Suez canal, and the remainder of the receipts would be put into a sinking fund for paying off the bonded debt. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. NEW CASTLE, Ind., March 27 .- Repre sentatives Johnson and Watson have met but once since Monday, and that was on a train from this city to Kennard, yesterday. There was simply an exchange of greetings and no further discussion of their differences. A new feature of the campaign which is exciting much indignation is the interference of outside parties in the can vass in Henry county. As an example this, a man named Compton came Knightstown yesterday, and, hunting up George A. Deem, chairman of the county mmittee, said to him:

"I am a Watson man from Indianapolis. I am in touch with Jack Gowdy and the other fellows, and want to find the doubtful ones-those who can be persuaded to vote for Watson."

Mr. Deem informed him that he had struck "What," said he, "I have a letter of in-

The hottest of the fight centers in this city, as the county seat. This centers in this city, as the county seat. This township, Henry, is recognized as containing Watson's strongest supporters, and it is from here that his campaign is directed. Mr. Watson spoke at Greensboro, Greensboro township, last night, and had a large attendance, although it is conceded that his opponent will carry the township. In the adjoining township, at Cadia Mr. Johnson was dressing the people in the Christian nurch. Standing room was all taken. Both omen and men flocked in from all around. It was something seldom seen in this see It was something seldom seen in this sec-tion. To-night Mr. Watson stood in the same pulpit and addressed a portion of the crowd of the preceding night. In addressing the people Mr. Watson presents his claims for their support on the grounds of his wonder-ful campaign against Holman. He said if there was ever an occasion when party service was to be rewarded it is in the present case. He presents his views on protection, on reciprocity and on finance, and closes with eulogiums on patriotic leaders of the Republican party. Mr. Johnson, in his speeches, says he came from Washington for the purpose of setting the minds of the people of Henry county at rest regarding certain defamatory stories which, he says, were circulated. He takes up each separate charge and ex-plains its origin, and his words never fail to carry conviction. He also presents his claims for renomination on the ground of rvices rendered his constituents. Johnson poke at New Lisbon this afternoon and at fillville to-night. He was in town a few ours this morning, and seemed highly leased with the success of his canvass so far, and said he felt willing to trust his fate to the Republican voters of Henry county, and felt that all would be well. He will leave for Washington at the earliest possible moment after the result is announced next Wednesday night.

The Poet's Warning. The New Castle Courier quotes R. Alexander Black, of Greenfield, as saying in the Hancock county man's convention: "We intend to send our money and our men into Henry county to help carry that county for James E. Watson, and we are doing it," and then bursts into verse in this style:

They say that black men as well as white Believe in the potent charm of the dollar; But the Black of Greenfield, all unite, Is in that line the aptest scholar. He has money, he says, to buy votes here, And men to vote if he cannot buy 'em, And he thinks that victory draweth near,

The Indiana output the past year has been larger than for several years, and in the block field it will run something like 1,150,000 tons, or about 100,000 tons less than the record. The total for the State of both bituminous and block will be between 3,500,-000 and 4,000,000 tons.

The fact that the controversy over the next year's scale will involve the price paid in the Danville district in Illinois has caused President Purcell, of the United Mine Workers of this State and President O'Connor, of the United M.ne Workers of Illinois, to go to Danville to urge the operators there to consent to an advance along mith Indiana. Soon after Guenther was placed in jail here his legs from the knees began to swell, and that part of the legs and the feet soon grew to enormous size. Guenther has spent the entire period of his confinement in the prison hospital. Guenther claims that his strange affliction is brought on by his confinement, but there are those who claim that it is caused by eating soap, and in support of this claim they say that shortly after he was sent to the Ohio penitentiary, some years ago, for a term of welve years on a charge of murdering hi wife, he became similarly afflicted. At the end of seven months he was granted an unconditional pardon. He soon recovered and

THE TRUNK MYSTERY

DEVELOPMENTS IN AN AFFAIR THAT IS WORRYING CHICAGOANS.

The Body Found in the Box Probably That of a Frenchman, Who Was Murdered in Salt Lake City.

CHICAGO, March 27.-It has been ascertained from the books of the Northwestern Railway Company that the box containing a corpse, which was sold at the unclaimed freight auction, was shipped from Salt Lake City Feb. 8, 1893. The consignor was G. M Morgan and the consignee G. M. Morgan, No. 166 South Jefferson street, Chicago. The big box remained in the freight house at Chicago three months, and was then sent to the storage warehouse, where it remained until the auction sale Monday. The police here have communicated the facts to the Salt Lake City police in the hope of learning something regarding the identity of the mysterious corpse and how it came to be sent to Chicago as merchandise A singular circumstance is that the name G. M. Morgan belongs to one of the most efficient officers of the United States Secret Service. He has been in Salt Lake and was quite well known there, being on intimate terms with the officials of the Mormon Church. Still, it is quite certain he was not in Salt Lake at the time of the shipment of the body, for he was in Chicago during the world's fair. Last winter Mr. Morgan was in Chicago, and was at that time an invalid. He quite often ridiculed the idea that detectives were unravelers of mysteries, and one day said that he had often made failures. and the failures were at the times he was most sure of success. It may be that the one knowing him to be in Chicago at the a lack of orders, partially resumed work | time. Then there is a possibility that the name was chosen at random. At present none of Mr. Morgan's Chicago friends know of his whereabouts. Whether he can help solve the mystery is doubtful. It was settled definitely this afternoon that the man whose body was found packed in the box was murdered. Dr. Louis J. Mitchell, coroner's physician, assisted by Dr. Heketon, held a post mortem examina-tion on the body at the county morgue. Two large holes had been made in the skull, and either would have killed the man. The weapon with which he was struck was some blunt instrument, as was shown by the size of the holes. The post mortem proved that the body was that of a man five feet six inches high, weighing about 145 pounds. Judging from the bones, the body was that of a young man about thirty or thirty-five years of age. There were two scalp wounds on the back and left side of the head. Under these scalp wounds were two skull fractures. The one on the back was round, one inch across. The one on the left temple was one-quarter by one inch. The bone in these places had been driven into the brain. The teeth were all sound and all present. The hair on the head was medium long, straight and dark brown. There was no beard or mustache. The internal organs were all in a healthy condition. Around the body was a truss, made as if in view for rupture. The only causes for death found were the skull

The police are now endeavoring to find the expressman who called at No. 166 South efferson street last week with a second box addressed to G. M. Morgan. Later—Henry Devere and Bas Marcel appeared at the Armory police station to-night and said they believed the body in the box is that of Joanes Prosper Chaseal, who disappeared from Salt Lake City in February, 1893. They have seen the body and feel reasonably certain it is that of Chaseal. Chaseal, supposed to be the man in the box, lived with a woman named Miss Rolande, on Franklin avenue, Salt Lake City, up to February, 1893, at which number the Fre to not remember. Chaseal lived with Miss Rolande as his wife, and the men who called at the police station to-night said that she is now in Paris, France, where she went in the hope that she would be able to find some way to clear up the disappearance of Chas-eal. Devere and Marcel both believe that Chaseal was murdered, and that the motive Chaseal was murdered, and that the motive therefor was robbery, as the latter was quite well off and carried jewelry at all times. It is said that as much as $2,000 or $3,000 worth was in his possession just before the disappearance. The men said also that the police of Paris have been notified of the disappearance of Chaseal, and have for some time been working on the case at the instigation of Miss Rolande.

C. M. Morgan Paid the Freight. SALT LAKE, Utah, March 27 .- Investigation here to-day has developed further facts relating to the box containing the corpse which was sold as unclaimed freight at the auction sale in Chicago yesterday. The box question was delivered to the Union Pacific freight office here on Feb. , at 8 a. m. The man who paid the freight charges ($17.55) signed his name as C. M. Morgan, and the package was consigned to C. M. Morgan, No. 166 Jefferson street, Chicago. C. M. Morgan took the train for Chicago on the same date. He was a man of medium height, dark hair, mustache and beard, and wore a soft felt hat. The railway officials here remember that the man was excited and acted nervous while transacting his business at the depot.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon friends of the family repaired to Forest Hill Cemetery, where the body in its white casket has remained in the public vault since it was brought home from Cincinnati by the stricken family nearly seven weeks ago. For some time the family has abandoned the idea that the missing head would be found, but the interment was withheld until to-day, with the slight hope that at some place or time would be brought to light and identified. Though but brief notice had been given, several hundred people were attracted to the cemetery, not out of morbid curiosity, but the occasion offered the first opportunity the people had for thus publicly expressing their sympathy for the afflicted Bryan family. A number of beautiful and appropriate floral offerings were placed on the casket by former schoolmates and friends of Miss Bryan. The funeral and its sad scenes The funeral and its sad scenes Bryan. The funeral and its sad scenes formed the closing chapter at Greencastle of the most appalling tragedy connected with any resident of this city. For the time being the horrible crime is vividly recalled, and many of the bystanders at the grave to-day expressed a determination to assist in securing the conviction of the alleged murderers, Jackson and Walling. There is renewed interest in the coming trial of the accused at Namert on April 7 Newport on April 7.

DELAY FOR WALLING. His Trial Will Not Follow That of

Jackson-A Grewsome Shipment. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CINCINNATI, March 27.-Walling's trial will not follow Jackson's, as at first agreed, but the Cane murder case will be heard before Walling's trial begins. The attorneys for both prisoners are now said to be working in unison. Sheriff Plummer, detectives Crim and McDermott and a clerk from the Newport county offices, called on Chief Deitsch Friday morning. They were locked up with the Colonel for some time, but said their call was merely social.

Coroner W. S. Tingley, of Campbell county, Kentucky, at the request of the parents of the murdered girl, Pear Bryan, collected together all the organs of the body. When the first examination was made and since, when parts of these organs were undergoing analytical examination by Drs. Crane and Carothers, great care has all along been taken to properly preserve the heart, liver, stomach, kidneys and, in fact, all parts of every organ that was absolutely required for examination. When the headless body was turned over to Pearl Bryan's relatives at Greencastle the surgeons were still engaged in their analysis, and the intestines and organs could not be at the time placed back within the body. Coroner Tingley, however, with great care filled the body with medicated cotton and had it in good condition before it was permitted to be shipped. This precaution and the pains taken has been the cause on and the pains taken has been the cause of the headless body remaining so long a time, fifty-six days, in a good state of presertime, fifty-six days, in a good state of preservation. With a more than ordinary delicate handling these organs have been guardedly preserved and handled. Coroner Tingley, when he received the request, at once took the organs one by one and laid them in separate layers of cotton and then placed them in a secure box and forwarded them.

This morning Chief Deitsch was asked by a Post reporter if a plaster of paris cost was a Post reporter if a plaster of paris cast was made of the part of the neck remaining on Pearl Bryan's body, in order to aid in identifying the head if it is ever found. He said that none had been taken. The Chief said that the friends were positive they could identify the head by the teeth, and did not deem this necessary. Besides, the Chief said, the flesh on the head would be sloughed away by this time, and a mold would, therefore, be of no benefit. He says that there will be no trouble to identify the head by the teeth, providing it is found. Only a leaf, but it would cut an important figure in the trial of Jackson and Walling, could it be found. The officers considered it strong link in the chain of circumstances that has been woven about the two prisoners in Newport. It will be remembered that Jackson told the police in the early part of the case that Walling had given him a package which he threw into the sewer at the southeast corner of Richmond and John streets. Detective White took a gang of sewer cleaners to the place, and a coat was fished out. It was subsequently dried, and found to be covered with blood. Jackson acknowledged ownership, but claimed that he did not know how the blood got there unless Walling wore it when the girl was killed. suit. He claims that out of 5,000 members of the leaves adhered. He probably stuck his hand in his pocket, and the leaf was rubbed off. When Witte found the leaf it was damp, and he laid it on one of the heaters in the City Hall to dry, but when he went to look for it the leaf was gone.

The detective hunted high and low but he could learn nothing of the whereabouts of the tiny bit of important evidence. Witte argues that the leaf was silent, but strong testimony to the effect that the wearer of the movement for an eight-hour day will make the probably stuck his but it. He claims that out of 5,000 members of the Association only about 300 have been consulted concerning his deposition.

At the time of the finding of the coat Walling denied ever having worn it, and said that he did not remember ever having seen such a coat in Jackson's possession.

of Taylor's Shortage. REDFIELD, S. D., March 27 .- Attorneygeneral Crawford was here to-day and disposed of at public sale the property under execution owned by State Treasurer Taylor's bondsmen. There was a good attendance of parties who anticipated buying the property at remarkably low figures because of the prevailing hard times and the scarcity of money, but it transpired that nothing could be bought below the appraisement of last summer. This closes the last chapter of the Taylor defalcation. The State hopes to realize by holding the property until better times since all realty is desirable property and must bring better prices when there comes an advance in values.

"SPIKEY" JONES'S FIND.

Body of a Strangled Woman Burled Beneath a Fallen Tree.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., March 27.-What appears to have been a brutal murder was brought to light to-day by the finding of the body of Mrs. John Roch in a strip of woods near Estelville, a small town two miles from this place. A man familiarly known as "Spikey" Jones, while on his way to work, found that a tree had been felled across the path which he usually follows. Beneath the tree the earth had been heaped in a peculiar manner. Jones's curiosity was aroused, and he began digging in the pile of dirt. After removing a few inches of the soil he came across the naked foot of a woman. Without waitof what he had found. The sheriff sur moned Justice Izard and the county clerk, and, with Jones as their guide, they made their way to the spot where the foot had been unearthed. After removing a few inches of earth they came on the body of a woman. The body was clad only in a night dress and wrapped in two old sacks. night dress and wrapped in two old sacks.

A handkerchief was wrapped tightly around the neck, and she had every appearance of having been strangled to death.

An investigation was made, and it was ound that the dead woman was Mrs. John toch, the wife of a man who had formerly Roch, the wife of a man who had formerly lived in a little cottage about two hundred feet from where the body was buried. Suspicion pointed to her husband as the probable murderer, and a search was made for him, but it was ascertained that he left yesterday for Philadelphia. It is the belief of Justice Izard and Sheriff Johnson that the woman was buried while she was yet alive. She was last seen alive on Sunday.
